OVERALL MARKET SENTIMENT

Over the last few weeks both the Stock and Cryptocurrency markets have taken steep hits with a lot of economic and political turmoil. Discussions of a possible takeover of Ukraine via Russia has led to speculation around a possible war with U.S. involvement. Traditionally, wars have led to short term economic hardship followed by economic booms which could help the U.S. get back to a stable economy. As of this week it was reported that the Consumer Price Index (CPI) was rated a high 7.5 with a .5 month over month increase, which is the highest inflation we have seen since the 1900s. This also has had a rather interesting impact on Cryptocurrency as there are proponents who believe that digital assets such as Bitcoin (BTC) are the best way to hedge inflations while others believe that traditional investments like Gold and Silver are the best way. The Superbowl hosted crypto related commercials from the likes of FTX, Coinbase and Crypto.com. With some of the highest view ratings in the world it will be interesting to see the impact, if any, that this will have on the number of crypto users and sign ups within the next couple of days.

Strongblock

Strongblock, Strongchain and Forward Looking

Strongblock, one of the original creators of the Node-as-a-Service (NaaS) provider has now been around for a bit over a year and has continued to pay out rewards to its loyal investors. Over the last few months we have seen many protocols which have tried to replicate the success and innovation put forward by Strongblock but up until now most have failed. Recently there has been many discussions and rumors around the creation and use of the "Strongchain" which would be a chain similar to that of ETH which could lead to a massive growth if done correctly. I mean imagine for a second, a Strongchain with its own D-apps, own launchpads and even NFT platform. The possibilities are endless, however these are just ideas which have been juggled and not set in stone just yet. We hope that David Moss and his talented team can continue to innovate, change and mold history with Strongblock. For the latest updates, David hosts a weekly AMA within the Strongblock discord.
